

June - November 2016

Communication with WikiLeaks

Stone communicated with individuals associated with WikiLeaks and boasted about his potential inside knowledge of the group's plans to release damaging information about Hillary Clinton.

September 2017

False Testimony to Congress

Stone testified before the House Intelligence Committee, where he made false statements about his communications regarding WikiLeaks and denied having emails that contradicted his claims.

October 2018

Threats to Witness Randy Credico

Stone attempted to pressure his associate, Randy Credico, to support his false statements to Congress, threatening him if he did not comply. This was a central piece of the witness tampering charges.

January 25, 2019

Indictment of Roger Stone

Roger Stone, a longtime Trump advisor, was indicted on seven counts, including obstruction of justice, making false statements, and witness tampering. The charges stemmed from his attempts to gather information about WikiLeaks' release of hacked DNC emails and his false statements to Congress.

November 15, 2019

Stone Convicted

Stone was found guilty on all counts, including lying to Congress, obstruction of justice, and witness tampering. He was sentenced to 40 months in prison but had his sentence commuted by Trump in July 2020 and received a full pardon in December 2020.